EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

John Patrick Bailey, Ph.D.

October 2005

To Whom It May Concern:

HomeAid works with the Building Industry to build and renovate shelters for the temporarily homeless.

To fulfill this mission, we rely on the good will of the builders who provide us with in-kind contributions of labor and materials for our projects. These efforts mean that victims of domestic violence, emancipated youth and teens in crisis pregnancy have a safe haven from which to rebuild their lives.

In seeking to expand our efforts into urban areas, we were seeking a visionary and compassionate Builder Captain. We found such an individual in the person of Alex Wong. Through his leadership, Alex assembled a dedicated and professional team which created the Transitional Living Center at the Midnight Mission. The Center is comprised of fourteen apartment units serving twenty-eight individuals every six months.

The Center is a permanent legacy of Alex's work which has greatly enhanced the capacity of the Mission to serve those most vulnerable in our community. We were very fortunate to have the support of a true professional.

Sincerely,

John Patrick Bailey, Ph.D.
